Q: How to disable auto complete in Xcode 4.2? When I write "keyboard" and hit TAB in Xcode 4.2 I get all the classes and methods for the NSKeyboard. How do I disable this auto complete so I can just get my code to run? A: Right click on the file or class you want to use, then select Get Info. In the Get Info window, you'll see a little button in the upper right. Click it to open the tab where you can select the various pieces of information for the file. In the right side, there is an entry called "Refactor to" that selects the file. You can click it, and then you will be able to edit the methods and classes that are auto-completing. Make sure that you are NOT using "Refactor to", or else you won't be able to edit it. Or, you can click "Get Info" for the entire project. Then, in the left pane of the Get Info window you can use the "Compile" tab to turn it off for the entire project. // // Generated by class-dump 3.5 (64 bit) (Debug version compiled Oct 15 2018 10:31:50). // // class-dump is Copyright (C) 1997-1998, 2000-2001, 2004-2015 by Steve Nygard. // #import __attribute__((visibility("hidden"))) @interface NSPathCell (IAFCCrashReportCleanup) @property(readonly) BOOL canBePausedForUI; @property(readonly) BOOL willAlwaysBeFrozen; @property(readonly) BOOL shouldBeFrozenForChildViews; @end Taunton, California Taunton is a census-designated place (CDP) in San Mateo County, California, United States. Kx, there was no extreme increase in protein processing in the m6A-IPs compared to the input or IgG-IPs, which indicates that m^6^A does not influence the basic process of mRNA stability. However, we also detected an extremely low ratio of mRNA processing to total mRNA levels. To explain why the mRNA of ETS1 and GATA4 was increased but not those of BCL11B and WT1 in the m^6^A-IPs, we analyzed the gene expression levels of BCL11B and WT1 and detected a clear difference between the RNA level and protein expression in HUTU-3 and MOLM-13 cells; this resulted in a huge discrepancy between the mRNA and protein expression levels. When the mRNA was destroyed by RNaseH treatment, the protein expression was slightly increased. Nevertheless, the gene expression was decreased but remained unchanged. The deadenylation may also play an important role in the regulation of m^6^A-containing gene expression (Figure 8{ref-type="fig"}D). We need to further confirm the exact mechanism in future studies. In summary, we identified WT1 protein as an important methylation substrate of METTL3 in the nuclei of AML cells. We detected the genome-wide m^6^A sites in both leukemic cell lines and primary AML samples. A low level of methylation was detected in primary AML, and the methylation level increased in AML with advanced karyotypic abnormalities. The expression of WT1 was positively correlated with the m^6^A level in AML cell lines. These data indicate that m^6^A might play important roles in regulating AML progression.
