The applications are not configured in their own log4j.properties files. Is there an easy way to configure all of the applications to log to the same root? Or should I implement some kind of configuration service for the applications where I can pass in the name of the application? Any advise is appreciated. A: I did it with specific annotations that can be passed in via program arguments, say: log.info("my app name {}", "my message"); The idea is to pass in the value of the property in the application startup and use this value in your log4j.properties file. You can have multiple log4j.properties in your classpath, hence you can have one for each application. So for instance, my log4j.properties is log4j.rootLogger=DEBUG, console log4j.logger.com.appname=DEBUG And in the console class I do: public static void main(String[] args) { if (args.length == 0) { System.setProperty("com.appname", "myappname"); System.setProperty("log4j.appname", "myappname"); } .... // other code } And in the log4j configuration file for myappname I specify log4j.appender.console=org.apache.log4j.ConsoleAppender log4j.appender.console.layout=org.apache.log4j.PatternLayout log4j.appender.console.layout.ConversionPattern=%d %-5p [%F:%L] - %m%n Hope that help Ask HN: Developer Questions: would you build a startup? - shivajirao I am curious, would you build 648931e174

The nation's cities are crying out for help, but congressional elections are held in rural areas and the conservative rural vote is overwhelming. So many Americans are living in the growing cities that the population is outgrowing the state's capacity to provide schools, roads and other public services. Yet, like the old saying in the Republican primary, it's the "anti-tax" states, particularly red states, that are most damaged by this. The founding fathers designed the system of government to protect citizens and make the government accountable to them. They gave us the Electoral College, the Senate and the House, regional governors and state governors, the executive and legislative departments, the president and vice-president, the governor's seat, the national legislature and a second chamber of national congress that must represent the people. And, yes, the city-states, too. We have been created to make the government accountable to us. We are sorely in need of the new Parliament. U.S. Rep. As these items are processed, the application has to change the state of the application, but must only be updated at the end of the day. I have a SynchronizationController, where a method named UpdateState() is called, that updates some values in the application state. To do so I first get all the items in the API at a specific date, and group them into an IQueryable. These are then sent to the controller action UpdateState(), where the items in the
