If you are looking for balance, fairness, and complete clarity regarding what information or responses the hype media is creating, here you are:

@thegrig556 suggested we run the list of what the 'hype media' has claimed and attempted to substantiate the claim so we can arrive at a solid conclusion without getting annoyed because we are clearly too intelligent to get worked up about many things out here.

This is a long one and I'd love to see your feedback - so let us know below what information actually has been published and what is speculative junk journalism. Note that in the following copy pastes, I will be considering what feels to me like egregiously false information, as that □□□□□□□□□□ A reasonable question, you think. If the mechanic designing the game was not a talented one, there's a good chance that the user experience would be like on this game, the interface as ugly as it is. That's why you don't ask me why I didn't submit to this game. T/N: it's just an emoticon And yet... But if you actually ask about the existence of the game in question? I have heard rumors of it being a game by IKARI (this name is available on NeoGaf) The game is currently being developed by KIZUMI-SOFTWARE in cooperation with AQNIA, who's known for making the original game of the same genre, Dungeon RUSH, and nOVA, who's famous for the mobile versions of classic games, like Dungeon Rush (I think it might be this one). I have heard of it being available on the Steam's Early Access sometime in summer of 2018 Many people have seen the game being announced in the Steam community posts. The game has been going through a lot of changes in the development stage. The game was shown as an action RPG, but the player can't actually select a menu for other genres. I wasn't able to find an opinion about what kind of genre it is on the forums, but the first preview video is said to have been uploaded to the official YouTube channel of AQNIA. Last but not least, I have asked a little bit more on IKARI, and got the following answer (citation: `mkkm_ges_` " ")
